The many participants in the Alaska Pacific Conference August 1, 1975.

The finalization of the Alaska Pacific Conference held at the Miles Memorial C.M.E. Church. Rev. L.D. Moorey, Host Pastor, came with Tacoma's Mayor Gordon N. Johnston presenting the key to the city to the host, Presiding Elder Lemuel McKinnie.

The Layman's Banquet was held at the Rodeway Inn, Friday night, August 1, 1975. Chaplin Roy Plumber, Fort Lewis, was the guest speaker. The subject was "Christian Fellowship in Social Structure". Chaplain Plumber is a well acclaimed speaker to everyone in the greater Tacoma area.

Highlights of the night were Councilman Harold Moss's remarks representing the Mayor of Tacoma.

Some of the crowd attending the banquet were from far away Alaska, Oregon, and all areas of Washington.

Mrs. J.L. Manus received a plaque of appreciation upon resigning from years of dedicated service as the Alaska-Pacific Conference Missionary president.

The Rt. Rev. Norris S. Curry, Presiding Bishop, made his final remarks to the guest with hopes of greater fellowship for the close of the conference year 1974-75.

N.Y.C. Official, Percy Sutton Honors Sorority

Percy Sutton, Borough President of Manhattan, gave a proclamation to Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority at their Leadership Conference at the Waldorf Astoria, and welcomed on behalf of New York City, the more than 500 members attending the conference from all parts of the country. Mr. Sutton congratulated the Sorority for their grassroots community involvement and scholarship programs.

Alpha Kappa Alpha, founded in 1908 at Howard University, is the largest and oldest sorority of Black college trained women in the United States.

Black Businessmen Seek Support

The Tacoma Black Businessmen's Association is asking the community to come out and support our first Semi-Annual affair.

This affair is for two purposes: 1.) to raise funds for its maintenance and upkeep of our office building, (the building is a place where the businessmen meet and is also available for other community organizations); and 2.) to give a preview of plans, objectives, and goals of the organization.

This affair will be held August 16, 1975 from 10:00 - 2:00 a.m. at the Amvets Post No. 96 on 74th and South Tacoma Way, Tacoma, WA. Music is by the fantastic Ready Made F mily Dance and Show Band.

Back to School Survey

By Barbara Henderson

Here is a survey on how the youth of Tacoma feel about going back to school.

PAT BROWN, 15 --"I don't want to go back 'cause I'm having such a good summertime."

MICHAEL BRYDIE, 11 --"I don't mind going back to school. You've got to get an education." (Wain Wright Student)

Winterizing Program

The Metropolitan Development Council and the Department of Human Development are planning to begin the 1975 Winterizing Program sometime next October.

The purpose of the program is to conserve energy by reducing heat loss, thereby making the home more comfortable and at the same time reducing heating costs to the homeowner. This is a nationwide effort sponsored and encouraged by the Federal Government throughout the United States.

Low-income homeowners who are residents of the city of Tacoma are eligible.

For more information, contact Addison King at the Department of Human Development. The telephone number is 593-4850.

BIAS IN MORTGAGE LOANS

Minority applicants for mortgage loans are turned down twice as often as white applicants. This was the finding of a survey made by the Comptroller of the Currency at the request of Sen. William Proxmire, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee. And though this is no new revelation, it marks the first time Congress has stuck its finger into this bleeding wound.

The survey exposed the fact that the Ford Administration has not brought one discrimination suit against a lending institution under the 1968 Fair Housing Act. The study looked at data in six metropolitan areas: Bridgeport, Conn.; Cleveland, Memphis, Montgomery, Topeka and Tuscon.

All mortgage loans approved and denied by all banks and savings and loan associations in those areas during the last half of the 1974 were studied. The findings included: Minority applicants earning $10,000 to $15,000 per year were rejected 26.5 per cent of the time compared to 15.6 per cent for white applicants in the same income bracket.

Minority applicants with over five years on the job were rejected 23.2 per cent of the time, compared to 14.1 per cent for white applicants. The survey demolishes the argument that the absence of cases under the 1968 Housing Act reflects an absence of racial discrimination. All it shows is that the bank regulatory agencies do not enforce the law against lending discrimination. It indicates the need for tougher laws. On the eve of a Presidential election it is highly improbable that the Ford Administration would sponsor stricter enforcement laws on mortgage loans. The situation fits the words of an old syncopated tune: the music goes round and round and comes out here.

Senior Citizens Have Awareness Day

By Barbara Henderson

On Thursday, August 7, 1975, the Broadway Plaza was a place of enthusiasm and happiness.

Senior citizens from the area took over the plaza for one day to let Tacoma know what services are available to local seniors.

The fourth annual Senior Citizens Awareness Day, SCAD, began at 9:30. Everything was in their favor, except for the weather. But rain didn't stop them. They had the whole program under a shelter. The day was filled with displays, bake sales and entertainment. They had a number of bands and singing groups which added variety to the program. Among them were some unique Japanese dancers, Hawaiian dancers and some square dancers. Also, there were some handicapped dancers in wheelcharis. To enlighten the festivities even more was the golden sound of New Jerusalem choir with Sonny Byers. They just cut a new album too! Korean musicians added to the amusement. Mary Theirry and chorus sand some wonderful tunes also.

A visit from the Mayor was part of the program. As he arrived he was met with an "aloha" from the Hawaiian misses. Mayor Gordon Johnston welcomed everyone and commended the seniors on their program. A little bird must have told the senior citizens that it was his birthday, because they caught him and sang happy birthday and gave him some beautiful gifts. He thanked all.

About 200 seniors from local rest homes were brought to the plaza to participate in the program. Scout troops and other youth volunteered to assist the seniors in wheelchairs get around the plaza to see the various displays and entertainment.

Lunch was served at the plaza for a $1 donation.

No only were senior citizens there, but people of all ages came to enjoy the program.

It was an outstanding program. SCAD was organized by the Senior Services Center of the Department of Human Development.

Links Support EOP Scholarship

A check for $1,000 Tuesday (July 22) was presented by the Seattle Chapter of The Links Inc. to the University of Washington's Educational Opportunity Program Scholarship Fund.

Ms. Lylia Joyner, past chapter president, made the presentation to Dr. John R. Hogness, University president, and Dr. Samuel E. Kelly, vice president for minority affairs.

The 1975 gift increases The Links' total contribution to the EOP since 1972 to $4,200.

Ms. Josephine Stokes is the 1975-76 president of the 36-member Seattle chapter of the national service organization, composed predominantly of Black women.

ONCE YOU GET STARTED

Have you ever wondered why when you begin to take initiative and do something good, some strange and evil force seems to work its way upon you to such a degree that discourages you? And you say, "Oh, forget it. What's the use? Shouldn't have ever started." All of these negative things we sometimes say.

Have you ever wondered what it is that seems to block your goals and even destroy them? The answer? It was merely you! You see, so many of us are so quick to blame that being we've all heard of called "Satan" for our troubles. Surely there is "Somebody watching you," and he's keeping a close close watchful eye on you to make sure that you don't succeed in the good that you attempt to achieve. But "once you get started" and recognize who you are and cease permitting your mind to speak negatively to you, then you will accomplish everything you've wanted to do. This also applies to those jealous forces that we receive from others who try to discourage us when we're doing something good. There are even those people who have nothing better to do than criticize, and say bad things against us - just to see how weak we are and how much we really believe in what we're doing. You must believe in yourself! You must believe you can do it. You must take a step forward and not look back. "Only the strong survive." "Only a rolling stone gathers no moss".

In the meantime you must "keep on truckin'" and remember that it takes all kinds of people to make a world. I want you to try to be one of the good people. "Once you get started" it's hard to stop! If you can believe this, you will make it. Unclean minds mislead the pure - but if you keep on smiling, everything will be all right. This is a little something I want you to do - and that is smile always.

A smiling face is an earthlike star,
A frown can't bring out the beauty that you are.
Love within, and you'll begin, smiling
Because there are brighter days ahead.

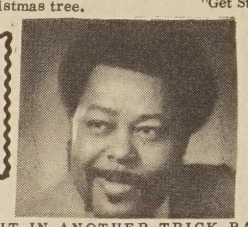
A smiling face you don't have to see
Cause it's as joyful as a Christmas tree.

Love's not competing - it's on your side
You're in life's picture, so why must you Cry?
So for a friend, please begin to smile,
There are brighter days ahead.

"Get Started"

Job Hunting

By Chuck Hatten



DON'T GET CAUGHT IN ANOTHER TRICK BAG

I can't emphasize enough how important it is to go into higher education with a definite purpose in mind that has been well thought out.

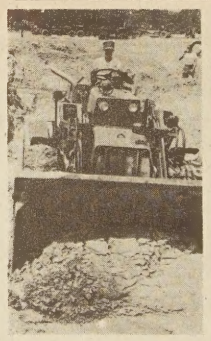
During the late sixties there was a lot of unrest within the Black communities across the country because of the economic situations that we found ourselves in. Our position was so bad generally, that a few revolutionists decided that the thing to do was to burn down a few cities. Whether this approach was right or wrong, it did get some results. We were informed by the "authorities" that due to our low educational levels, blacks and other minorities could not get the good paying jobs. They further stated that the answer was not to destroy the cities, but to get a better education. Furthermore, they would help minorities to get into schools. They would even make it relatively easy to get loans and grants so this same economic hardship would not hinder one from staying in school. RIGHT ON. With this good news, torches were replaced by books. From 1968 to this date there has never been more minorities entering colleges and universities before in the history of this country. TRICK BAG.

After spending four, five, or six or more years in getting better educated, there are still many minorities who can't find that good paying job or any job at all. Why? Aside from the fact that the nation is trying to shake the effects of a recession, no one bothered to inform those students that private industries are primarily looking for employees with technical, business or financial degrees. The social services can not employ everyone graduating in that field. Those fortunate enough to locate employment find that the pay scale is not what they expected after obtaining a bachelor's or master's degree. I don't need to remind you about the difficultues that those who have gone into the teaching field are finding. The sad thing is that without some experience in another area, it is very difficult to change professions. How does one with a degree in education compete for a position in manufacturing management when there are dozens of business majors after the same job?

What is the point of this article? Be sure that the educational career that you choose is also one that offers you an opportunity to find gainful employment. Don't get caught in the trick bag, don't spend four or five years of your life being trained in a field that is already overcrowded. Investigate some the areas that are always in demand, i.e.: Medicine, Law, Engineering, Finance, Computers, and other technical fields.

AMERICA'S PEACEKEEPERS

THE MARINE CORPS RESERVIST EARNS HIS REWARDS



First off, you get pay you can spend. Some reservists literally buy cars with their earnings. For others, it's just "fun" money. And for still others, it's stacked away towards the purchase of a house, education for the children, vacations, and a lot of other things.

And if you're working, there's absolutely no conflict between drill time and your job. Your job rights are protected by law, and most employers encourage Reserve participation. Many employers actually pay your full salary while you're on summer training duty. So you can really clean up.

And speaking of civilian employment, the Marine Reserve can lead to bigger and better things. Not only can you learn a valuable skill, but you can also associate with a full spectrum of people from your community when you go to drill. Many's the time a reservist has found better employment through new friends he makes at the training center. And if you're looking for a job, few things can look better to a prospective employer than a resume which shows that you're a Marine Reservist. It proves to him that you've got determination. And pride in your work.

After all, you're a Marine.

For details about the range of enlistment programs and opportunities in the Marine Corps Reserve, call this toll-free number: (800) 423-2600. In California, the toll-free number is (800) 252-0241.

A Glimpse At Black Poetry

By John R. Jackson

Contemporary Black American poets write out of a tradition which Dunbar, Wheatley, McKay, Brown, Cullen, Hughes, Johnson, and others have done much to shape.

Depending on socio-political circumstances and individual artistic sensibilities, Black poets express their bittersweet vision of the Black experience by either adopting traditional forms or creating new ones.

In a very real sense, however, contemporary Afro-American poetry has its roots in the African slaves' lyrical affirmation of life. In spite of its rather selective exclusion from early collections of Afro-American folksongs, the ballad has long been an influence on Black American poets. Since the late nineteenth century, Blacks have been singing of the exploits of "John Henry", "Stackerlee", "John Hardy", "The Rock Island Line", and others.

Traditionally, the folk ballad, usually rhyming abcb, has been thought of as poetry of the people, by the people, and for the people.

The following original ballad: "Martin Luther King: A New Drummer Of Peace", sings the praises of a Black hero who was truly a new drummer for peace, a Black hero who gave the world a brand new dream.

Here comes metric!

Very soon, the U.S. will be switching to the Metric system of weights and measures and the transition may be as painful and traumatic as seeing your favorite pet put to sleep. We have been resisting for years, but now the time has come to reprogram our brains to think in terms of 'grams, centimeters, kilometers, liters and hectares. For a quick lesson on the changeover, here are some basics:

UNITS OF WEIGHT

1 ounce—28 grams
1 pound—approximately 450 grams
1 kilogram—2.2 pounds

UNITS OF LENGTH

2½ centimeters—1 inch
30 centimeters—1 foot
1 meter—1 yard plus about 3 inches
1 kilometer—0.6 mile

AREAS

1 square inch—6½ times in square centimeter
1 square yard—a little less than 1 square meter
1 hectare—2½ acres
1 square mile—2.6 square kilometers

VOLUME

1 fluid ounce—30 cubic centimeters
1 liter—a little more than 1 quart (about 5 per cent more)
4 liters—a little more than 1 gallon

That's enough for now. We don't wan't to blow your minds. What will we do with the yard sticks and the tape measures? Maybe they should go into some time vault so that 200 years from now, the inhabitants can view some of the quaint relics of their ancestors. Think Metric!

1975 Conference on Aging to Feature Senator Magnuson and Alex Comfort

OLYMPIA -- U.S. Senator Warren G. Magnuson will head a roster of distinguished guest speakers at Washington State's 1975 Conference on Aging, August 25-27, at Pacific Lutheran University, Tacoma.

Authorities on aging scheduled for the three-day conference include: Alexander Comfort, author and senior fellow, Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions; William Oriol, staff director, U.S. Senate Special Committee on Aging; William Hutton, executive director, National Council of Senior Citizens; Hobart Jackson, past chairman, National Caucus on the Black Aged; Paul Nathanson, executive director, National Senior Citizens Law Center, Jack Ossofsky, executive director, National Council on Aging.

The conference is co-sponsored by the Washington State Council on Aging and the Department of Social and Health Services Office on Aging. It is open to all older citizens and those who are interested in their rights and responsibilities.

An attendance of approximately 500 is expected from throughout the state. All sessions will be held on the PLU campus.

Key issues will be: problems of the elderly -- the need for responsive services and programs; the elderly as an oppressed minority -- elements and strategies for change; the elder in society -- opportunities for involvement and productiveness.

Santor Magnuson will address the gathering at 10:00 a.m. Monday, August 25, on "Status of Appropriations in the Congress for the Elderly."

Alex Comfort will speak at the 12 noon luncheon, Wednesday, August 27, on "Research on Aging: Altering the Life Span."

Subjects to be explored in plenary sessions and workshops include: consumerism for the elderly -- food, drugs, landlord/tenant legislation; legal services; mibility options; mental health services; home health care; senior centers; nursing homes; problems of older women; problems of older blacks; opportunities for the elderly in the arts, volunteer services and new careers.

For registration and additional information contact DSHS Office on Aging, Olympia (753-1248).

THE NORTH WEST FACTS

Black Businessman of the Week

The Black Businessmen's Association is proud to present their choice for Black Business Man of the Week of August 10, 1975. He is Sgt. Sammy Young (U.S.A. Ret), 48, of 2325 South Wilkeson, who operates two businesses, Sam and Son Landscaping and Janitorial Service, and the 23rd Street Cafe, located at 1120 South 23rd.

We were often reminded of Sanford and Son, the T.V. personalities when Mr. Young used to drive his red 1952 Ford pickup down the street with the large white lettering on the side that read Sam and Son.

He was born in Drew, Mississippi and was first stationed at Ft. Lewis back in 1961. He retired after 22 years in 1966. He's married and has 9 children. He affiliates with the New Covenant Pentecostal Tabernacle.

Recently he acquired a newer and larger truck, but it was income from the old red pickup that helped him to finance his second business venture, the 23rd Street Cafe, which he purchased from Alphonso Holloway.

The cafe stays open Mondays through Thursdays, 6:00 a.m. to 11 p.m., and from 6:00 a.m. Friday morning till 11 p.m. Sunday night. The specialties of the house are ribs and chicken, barbequed and chitterlings. He cooked in the army for 15 years.

His newer truck has enabled him to be more efficient in hauling, basement cleanups, moving, landscaping, all lawnwork from planting to cutting and other odd jobs.

His restaurant has a pool room with two pool tables and his future plans call for starting a weekly pool tournament, with a gradual increase in the prize money.

Something To Think About

What causes fights and disagreements? I think it is due to a lack of understanding between the two persons. If there were some kind of Harmony between the two, there would not be any fights. However, in this harsh world harmony is not a realization. When two non-cooperative sources get together there is bound to be some conflict involved.

If both sources are ignorant - no one is going to give in.

Somebody is going to have to surrender. That's what's wrong with people - nobody wants to give in. Everyone is in their own world, into their own thing. They don't want to see what's going on with others. So many times people feel that they know who they are and what they are - and they don't want others to tell them anything. Sometimes constructive criticism is good. If someone tells you something about yourself, you shouldn't down them, but you should listen to what they have to say and then search yourself to see if there is any truth to it. Be understanding!

New Recruits

SHAWN L. DOUBEK AND JERRY BYNUM of Seattle, were two of 15 young people who enlisted in the Navy at a mass swearing in ceremony of Navy and Marine Corps personnel, recently.

Commander Tony Less, USN, Commanding Officer of the famed Blue Angels officiated at the ceremony that was held at the Naval Support Activity, Sand Point.

The other pilots of the Blue Angel Squadron are in the foreground.

The Wall Street West Report

by Abe Moore

The Wall Street Journal reports that a 7 3/4 percent prime rate became industry-wide as the nation's big banks boosted their rate from 7½ percent following the lead of First National City Bank. The move was seen as an attempt to maintain profit margins in the face of rising money costs.

Business Week reports on the advantage of a trust fund. The sooner you put aside money for your child's education the better. One way of getting the most out of your savings is through a trust fund for your youngster. It can save substantial tax dollars.

For example, suppose you have already set aside $5,000 for your seven year old's future college expense. You invested that $5,000 in a conservative portfolio that yields 8 percent annually, and you put the proceeds from that investment into a 5 percent savings account. If you are in the 50 percent tax bracket, your net return on the $5,000 investment is $200 the first year, or half of the $400 total interest paid, and each year, thereafter you would receive half of the interest paid. On the other hand, if you establish a $5,000 trust fund with yearly income paid directly to your youngster the income is taxable to him. The child can apply the $750 personal exemption and, assuming there is no other income, he or she won't have to pay any taxes at all. Regardless of your child's income, you can still claim him as a dependent if he or she is under 19 or a full time student and you provide half the support.

The article goes on to explain that you can save as much as $2,800 in taxes over a 10 year period.

For further information please contact Foster & Marshall in Seattle, Washington at 705 Columbia, or call (206) 344-2452.

Brilliant Bicentennial Edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus Coming Soon

The largest selection of performing animals on earth are prominently featured in the mammoth Bicentennial Edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Michel Silva is one of the lovely dancing showgirls in the Bicentennial Edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

The beautiful Bicentennial Edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus is coming to the Seattle Center Coliseum on Wednesday, September 10 for performances through Sunday, September 14, gathering its international family for a rousing salute to the 200th birthday of America.

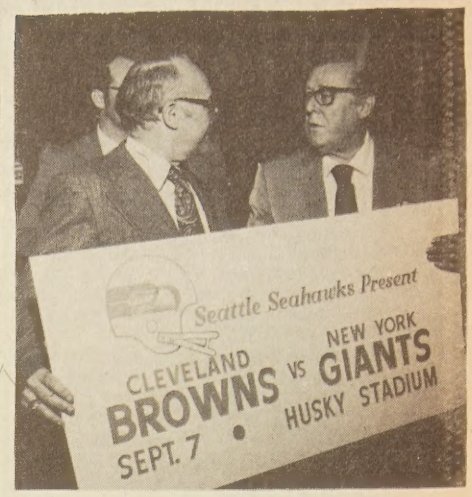
The Greatest Show on Earth is produced by a father and son team: Irvin Feld and Kenneth Feld. In their quest to create the most colossal extravaganza ever witnessed, these two giants of the entertainment field have traveled throughout the world to assemble the earth's finest Circus artists.

The Bicentennial Edition features Gunther Gebel-Williams, acclaimed the most remarkable animal trainer of all time. Gunther commands 17 tigers - the greatest number ever brought together in one cage! In addition, Gunther presents a mixed animal act which includes tigers, horses, and elephants - a deadly combination never seen before in any circus!

Making his American Circus debut is Philippe Petit, the young French highwire artist, who received worldwide recognition for his highwire walk atop the World Trade Center, 1350 feet above the streets of New York City.

REDWOOD CITY, CALIF.—Former heavyweight boxing champ George Foreman, who is looking forward to a rematch with heavyweight champ Muhamid Ali, "spars" with Bombay, a 450-pound Bengal tiger at Marine World/Africa USA here. Foreman, who visited the park to specifically see the tiger show, thought "the trainer was crazy to enter the ring with the big cats," and from the look on his face it appears George is wary about being this close to the jungle feline.

Pro Football Coming to Seattle



SENATOR WARREN G. MAGNUSON (right), who jokingly volunteered to play for the Seattle Seahawks of the National Football League during a Salute to the Seahawks recently, joins with Seahawks General Manager John Thompson in urging Pacific Northwest football fans to see the Cleveland Browns - New York Giants game Sept. 7 in University of Washington Stadium. Tickets for the game are on sale at Fidelity Lane and 11 Western Washington outlets. Ticket prices are $8.00 for reserved, $5.00 for general admission ($2.50 for student general admission). Mail orders will be accepted by Seattle Seahawks Tickets, P.O. Box 4065, Seattle, Washington 98104. Fans ordering by mail are asked to enclose 50¢ per order for postage and handling.

ARNG consolidation continues

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Consolidation of another Army National Guard division is part of a long range plan to group all multi-state divisions into not more than two states per division.

The latest Guard division to be realigned is the 50th Armored Division located in New Jersey and Vermont. Two brigades and division artillery are formed from Guard assets in New Jersey; the third brigade from Vermont Guard units.

Before realignment of Guard forces began in 1967-68, there were 23 divisions manned at about 60 per cent strength. Now there are eight divisions and 18 separate brigades manned at 92 per cent strength.

Earlier this year, the 42d Infantry Division was realigned entirely within New York and the 28th Infantry Division within Pennsylvania.

Three of the eight Guard divisions are still split between two or more states. In 1973, the 49th Armored Division was consolidated in Texas and the 40th Infantry Division (Mechanized) was grouped within California last year.

Consolidation of the three remaining divisions is still in the planning stage. The Guard also has studied consolidation of separate units into brigade elements to increase overall readiness and to simplify command and control.

Evergreen State Program Will Study Relationship Between Africa and America

The emergence of African nations as increasingly-powerful factors in global affairs and the relationship of the world's largest continent to America will be the subject of an intensive year-long 1975-76 study program at The Evergreen State College.

Entitled "Africa and the United States," the program will start at the beginning of Fall Quarter on September 29 and is open to both full-time and part-time students.

Coordinator Dumisani Maraire, an Evergreen faculty member born and educated in Rhodesia, says the program will range from a study of African culture and history--including Western social/political/economic influences as well as the rise of Black awareness in both "worlds" --to a thorough examination of today's relationships between African nations and the United States.

Maraire, whose academic specialties are African cultural studies and musicology, will be joined on the faculty team by anthropologist Isa Daum and Dr. William H. Brown, a geographer.

The program will be divided into five topical sections: Africa Before the Coming of Western Influence, The Invasion of Africa by the West, African Black Awareness, Black Awareness and Revolution in America, and Africa Today.

At the start, students and faculty will examine the geography, history, and sociology of Africa, including studies about its kingdoms, style of government, religion, philosophy, customs, and traditions. The next program segment will involve studies of slave trade, missionary activity, colonization and early wars between Africans and the settlers, control of Africa by Western powers, and such other influences as the Peace Corps, Red Cross, news media, tourism, and establishment of military bases.

Program participants then will undertake a close study of Western-educated Africans, particularly those who studied overseas, and the rising political awareness among Africans. Topics of study will include independence through removal of colonial governments; Apartheid in Southern Africa; the Rhodesian European government; guerrilla wars, with a special emphasis on the Mau Mau in Kenya, Tanzania, Zambia and the Nigerian-Biafran War; and an analysis of the effectiveness of the Organization of African Unity.

The fourth segment will focus on Black awareness and revolution in America--its relationship to the political situation in Africa and the relationship between Africans and Black Americans today.

The concluding part of the program, "Africa Today" will examine such topics as African governments, Neo-Colonialism, African political parties, civil wars, and the political/economic directions in which the many African nations may be heading. Program participants also will study religion, music, art, customs versus laws, and the differences between young Western-educated Africans and African-educated Africans.

In addition, the program will conduct special interest classes where students will learn African dance and singing and how to play the drums, mbira, marimba--all in the style of the Shona Tribe of Zimbabwe, of which faculty member Maraire is a member. Workshops on African cooking, children's games, and music also will be included.

"The program will feature lectures by faculty, special guests who are either Africans or African specialists, and any other persons who have visited Africa and wish to express their views," Maraire said. "We also will show numerous films and read and discuss various books, including works by such outstanding men in Africa today as Chinua Achebe, Julius Nyerere, Kenneth Kaunda, and Kwame Nkrumah."

Part-time students may participate by enrolling in workshops, weekly special interest classes or by attending the lecture and film series which will be held at least three times per week and will include discussion sessions.

Further information may be obtained from Maraire (866-6075) or Evergreen's Office of Admissions (866-6170).

To be equal

By Vernon E. Jordan, Jr.

A major development in our society has been the relatively recent rise of what has been called "the new ethnicity."

The old melting pot concept of America — that all citizens, whatever their ethnic origins, be made into some sort of homogenized "American" modeled on the Anglo-Saxon founders of this country — is effectively dead.

In place of the melting pot, there is a pluralistic recognition of our diverse origins, cultures and backgrounds, with the added realization that no one has to apologize for his forebearers, his race of his accent because they don't match the false ideal of the society.

Suddenly, we see people who used to change thier names and smooth their manners adopting their tradition with gusto, enthusiastically putting the hyphen back into "American." Polish-Americans, Irish-Americans, Italian-Americans, Jewish-Americans, and many dozens of other groups are reaffirming that this is a nation of immigrants and that while we are all citizens of one land, each of us brings to it a special, specific culture and background.

America is a combination of all of those different cultures and its strength lies in a healthy, diverse pluralism that respects all and belittles none.

In part, this new ethnicity stems from the civil rights movement of the late 1950s and early 1960s. The black rejection of the white Anglo-Saxon model of supposed superiority and the revival of pride in our own ethnic background helped influence other groups.

Some people see renewed confidence by other ethnic groups as being somehow "bad for blacks" since the "ethnics" are commonly perceived by the media and others to be more liable to racism than others.

But a report of studies made over the past several years indicates just the opposite is true.

Writing in a new research publication, The Urban League Review, Dr. Robert B. Hill concludes that:

"Generally, we have found that white Protestants throughout the nation are more likely to hold unfavorable racial attitudes than white ethnics in similar size communities and regions."

"These findings strongly suggest that white ethnics, who comprise only a small fraction of the population in most parts of the nation, have apparently been 'scapegoats' for many anti-black activities spearheaded by white Protestants. Thus, special caution should be exercised in the future before snap judgments are made about the 'racism' of white ethnics and the 'liberalism' of white Protestants."

Lest anyone think that such conclusions are tilted by the predominance of white Protestants in the south, where there wre relatively few ethnics, Hill states that:

"In regions outside the south, white ethnics are still less likely than white Protestants to favor school segregation."

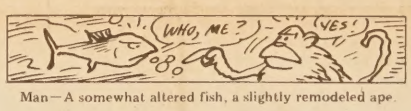
Some inter-group friction is almost inevitable in the early stages of ethnic self-discovery, but never as much as the media make it appear, and even such biases tend to melt away.

In this regard, blacks consistently come off as the most tolerant of all ethnic groups, evidencing less anti-Semitism, and less anti-other group feelings than others. Recent statements by leaders of the Black Muslims indicate that the religion will now accept white members, which illustrates the tendency of once exclusive groups to become more inclusive once their own identities are more solidly established.

The basic point both blacks and other ethnic groups should keep in mind is that none can afford inter-group conflict. To one degree or another America's minorities, be they black, brown, yellow, red or white, have suffered exploitation and deprivation. By working together they can help overcome their disadvantages; by getting sidetracked by manipulated confrontations, they can only sabotage their hopes and aspirations.

The Veterans Administration during fiscal year 1976 plans to spend a record $3.9 billion on its hospital and medical care program.

The veteran population includes 13.59 million veterans of World War II, 7.5 million of the Vietnam era, 5.9 million of the Korean Conflict, 990,000 from World War I and 900 of the Spanish-American War.



Man—A somewhat altered fish, a slightly remodeled ape.

A woman walked up to a group of young children huddled together on the ground. As she reached them, she was horrified to see that they were playing with baby skunks. "Children, run!" she screamed at the top of her voice. Obediently, each child grabbed a skunk and ran.

Reviewer's role emphasized

WASHINGTON (ANF)—MILPERCEN officials are reminding reviewing officers that cursory reviews and rubber stamping of OERs is not the purpose of including a reviewer in the rating chain.

The reviewing officer must analyze rater and indorser OER entries for objectivity, accuracy and fairness to both the rated officer and DA. The reviewing officer serves as the link between rating officials in the field and DA.

A reviewing officer should challenge rating officers to justify their evaluations, MILPERCEN officials say. This task is vital when the rater and indorser differ significantly in their appraisals of the rated officer's performance and/or potential.

By regulation (AR 623-105), a reviewing officer may attach his observations or recommendations to the basic report. And he may add comments considered necessary to protect the rated officer and the Army.

Reviewers should understand the active and important role they play in the OER process. In this way, MILPERCEN officials say, reviewers can help DA and selection boards provide a more effective officer evaluation reporting system.

TOURING EUROPE----ROME, ITALY------In the early morning is the most beautiful city made by the hand of man. The streets are empty of traffic, pedestrians are few. The air is pure. If you are not too far away, walk to St. Peter's. A wide "processional" way stretches before you, with St. Peters at the end of it. St. Peters is the largest church in the world, but it looks its size only when it is almost empty. At midday, crowded with tourists, it can give the impression of a railway station - big indeed.

The real pride of the Roman region lies in its own native cooking - simple hearty, vigorous, distinguished by the produce and specialties of its province, LATIUM, and the neighboring provinces of "Umbria" and "Marche". The regional favorite is "PORCHETTA": suckling pig stuffed with herbs and roasted whole.

Rome is full of elegant restaurants catering to an international taste. But to savor the Romans own hearty fare smaller restaurants offer such interesting dishes as flattened fried artichokes---one of the most ancient and authentic of Roman vegetables.

ROMAN MENU
STRACCIATELLA (Parmesan egg soup)
FILETTI DI BACCALA (Cod dipped in batter and fried in olive oil)
CROSTINI ALLA PROVATURA (slices of bread with Provatura cheese melted)
PORCHETTA (Roast suckling pig with herbs)
BROCCOLI ALLA ROMANA (simmer in white wine and olive oil)
PISELLI AL PROSCIUTTO (Little new peas with Prosciutto Ham)
ZUPPA INGLESE (Dessert resembling English Trifle)

Our favorite picnic spot - VIA APPIA, oldest and most illustrious of the great highways to ancient Rome. We spread our lunch under a roadside tree near a town dating back to the Middle Ages.

SUPPLI AL TELEFONO (Deep Fried Rice and Cheese Balls)
2 eggs
2 cups freshly made RISOTTO (seasoned rice)
4 oz. MOZZARELLA Chesse cut into ½ inch cubes
3/4 cup fine bread crumbs
Vegetable Oil

Beat the egg, then add the rice. Scoop up 1 tbl. of the mixture and insert a cube of Mozzarella in the middle and top with another spoonful of rice. Press together and shape into a ball. Roll in bread crumbs. Place on waxed paper when all balls are shaped. Deep fry at 375 degrees until lightly browned. Drain. Keep warm in oven until serving time.

You probably don't have to worry about having sophophobia. It means fear of learning, and few people who had it would read this to learn the meaning of the word.

TILTING WITH WINDMILLS

"To dream the impossible dream;to fight the unbeatable foe..."

That line is from a song called the "Impossible Dream", which itself is from a play called Man of LaMancha. The Man from LaMancha was named Don Quixote(pronounced key-ho-tee); and he had this thing about fighting duels with windmills. I mean REAL windmills, the great big things that used to dot the landscape of Holland, with their big fans turning around and around and getting nowhere. Whether Don Quixote had bad eyesight or delusions, or was slightly demented, or what, anytime he looked at a windmill, he thought it was a dragon, and immediately set out to joust with it.

("To bear with unbearable sorrow; to march where the brave dare not go...")

Now it seems wh have a new Don Quixote in our midst; only this one is named Jim Barratt, and rather than being an aged noble man like the original Don Q., Barratt is only 50. For the last ten years he has served as athletic director of Oregon State University, fighting the ins and outs of an admittedly convoluted dragon: the National Collegiate Athletic Association(NCAA). Now, Barratt has decided that the new dragon on the scene --the Federal Government's Title IX legislation--may not be a dragon at all...

"I am becoming weary of being a Don Quixote, fighting windmills, which now result in my resignation," Barratt says, predicting he "will be the first of several athletic directors throughout the nation to sacrifice themselves on the altar of Title IX!"

What is this IX windmill monster? Title IX mandates that all college athletic programs must be provided--and--funded--equally for men and women. That means that, even though the only sports at colleges that usually bring in money are men's football and mens' basketball, that money must be spent on ALL sports equally.

"I'll cite just two problems coming out of this can of worms," Barratt said in his resignation speech. "Womens' athletics will have nine sports here at Oregon State next fall and mens' athletics will have seven. Under Title IX provisions, I expect that men will be candidates for the womens' teams in swimming and tennis."

Of course, Title IX was instituted because womens' athletics were being badly underfinanced, if they were financed at all; and women, though they pay the same tuitions to attend college, were being deprived one of the benefits of attendance---the right to participate. Title IX also insits that scholarships be awarded to more women athletes for their sports.

The problem with this is that, at most colleges, athletics are hurting for money even when just supporting mens' athletics. Travel costs are up, equipment costs are up, and housing costs are up--and in many cases, revenue is either down or holding even. After all, you can only pack so many fans int a fooball stadium or basketball arena; and if you raise the prices too high, well, the fans will choose professional sports over college in most cases. And then revenue would go down even more, and things would become more and more unequal...

("To be willing to march into hell for a heavenly cause...")

So rather than fight the windmills and Feds and NCAA types any more , Barratt is getting out while the getting is good. "Why," he asks, "would an athletic administrator with nearly 25 years of service...kiss it all goodbye at the pinnacle of his career.

"A couple of outstanding business opportunities," Barratt answered himself--and Title IX.

("To try when your arms are too weary to reach the unreachable star...")

So after ten years of tilting with windmills, fighting dragons and raching for stars, Jim Barratt is banging up his sword. He finally reached the star--and got burned.

Oh well--Don Quixote died in the end. At least Barratt isn't going that far.

Hi Boxing Fans -- We are back with you but TOMMY fights tonight so you know that I will be busy and really will be pressed to give you too much news. But I can tell you about our trip last week. TOMMY and I were in SLAVE LAKE, in Alberta, Canada. That is about as close as you can get to the N.W. TERRITORIES and not be out of this world. The trip was beautiful, especially when we were in the JASPER PARK area. We stopped at BANFF and had lunch, then drove into Edmonton, Alberta and stopped for the night. The most inspiring sight was in the JASPER PARK MOUNTAINS. We were up so high that the mountain goats were eating by the roadside. Now you know we were in the mountains! After a good nights sleep we started on the last leg of the trip, about 200 miles north of Edmonton. That drive was beautiful. We were really on a strip of highway that was just cut out of the forest. We saw a few bears, some elk and other animals. The last stretch of the trip was about eighty miles with no gas stations or anything else, and let me tell you about the gas. We paid 90¢ a gallon, so you know when we got back here I was not worried about going into a gas station. In fact I didn't even look around for prices.

As I said before, HOWARD is boxing tonight so I will have to cut it short here and tell you all about the fights next week. But if you want to take a beautiful trip and stay at a fabulous Hotel, then go to SLAVE LAKE and stay at the SAWRIDGE MOTOR HOTEL. You really will not believe what you see. Take my word for it, you will thank me for the idea. But please go before the snows set in, as the people tell me it snows higher than the houses and tents. Would you believe they have a nine-hole golf course, but they tell you to watch out for bears. In other words, take a rifle instead of your sand-wedge (ha-ha). More next week. --CI BON.

PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS

The first thing you most likely hear about private colleges is that they are too expensive. It is true that private colleges cost more than state schools, [but one should investigate anyway] for the following good reasons:

1. Most private colleges offer financial assistance packages consisting of grants, loans and part-time employment opportunities. There are instances where such packages have actually made a private education less expensive than a state school. You owe it to yourself to at least find out, if you believe you are academically qualified.

2. In addition to the general financial assistance program, PLU has a minority scholarship program that provides additional supplemental assistance to minority students.

3. A private college education like PLU's is personalized. You aren't lost in a crowd. Professors know you by name and are willing to spend time helping you both in and out of the classroom. In addition, you receive a quality education. At PLU more than 50% of the faculty members hold doctor's degrees. And they all teach!

4. Pacific Lutheran University offers a "quality education in a Christian context." The university believes that to be a truly educated person in today's world, one needs to have had the opportunity to examine not only the intellectual and technological questions, but the moral, ethical and religious questions as well.

5. There were very few minority students at PLU until the late '60's. Today the student body is 12% non-Caucasian. The rapid increase is the result of active recruiting, the availability of minority advisory personnel on campus, and an ethnic studies program designed to enrich the entire course curriculum.

PROSPECTIVE EMPLOYEES

While it is obvious that faculty and administrative positions at a university require advanced training, the majority of the campus work force is classified "staff." Many of these positions are available to qualified high school graduates. There are several good reasons to investigate these opportunities:

1. The PLU Board of Regents has adopted and heartily endorses an Equal Employment Opportunity policy that applies to all persons, regardless of race, color, nationality or sex.

2. The university has also endorsed an Affirmative Action Program. The program includes a comprehensive statement of policies, regular campus communication and dialogue on the subject, regular contact with employment and other agencies on EEO matters, the initiation of training programs, and regular administrative review to insure that policies are being followed.

3. All staff members are eligible to participate in an excellent employee's benefits program which includes, among other things, special educational opportunities for both employee and his or her dependents.

4. One works in a casual, friendly atmosphere and has an opportunity to meet and know many interesting and stimulating people.
